FOREWORD

Trade Unionism has made its headway owing to growth of industrialisation and capitalism. Trade Unionism asserts collectively the rights of the workers. In industrially advanced countries trade unionism has made a great impact on the social, political and economic life. India, being an agricultural country, trade unionism is restricted to industrial areas and it is still in a stage of growth. The setting of industrial units involving wide spread use of machinery, changes in working and living environment of workers, concentration of industries in large towns have brought the workers together to maintain and improve their bargaining power and hence their employment conditions.

The setting up of textile and clothing mills around the port cities of Bombay (now Mumbai), Calcutta (now Kolkata), Madras (now Chennai) and Surat in the second half of the 19th century led to the beginnings of the industrial workforce in India. Several incidents of strikes and protests by workers have been recorded during this time. Trade Union movement began in India after the end of First World War. The first organized/registered Trade Unions in India named as the Madras Labour Union was formed as early as 1918 while the first Trade Union Federation to be set up was the All India Trade Union Congress in 1920. Since then, a large number of Unions came up in almost all the industrial centers of the country. The waves of strikes boiled over with the arrest of prominent leaders and trade-unionists in the infamous 'Cawnpore Conspiracy case' in 1924 overthrow the ruling British government. Subsequently, the Trade Unions Act, 1926 was passed which created the rules for the regulation and closer monitoring of Trade Unions. The Rules Framed under the "Trade Unions Act, 1926 impose obligation on the registered Trade Unions (Workers & Employers) to submit annual statutory return in the prescribed format to the Registrar of their respective States/Union Territories. These State/UT Authorities in turn furnish the consolidated data in respect of the entire State/U.T. to the Labour Bureau. Labour Bureau further disseminates these statistics after compilation by bringing out the Report publication at all India level. The present biennial Report presents comprehensive statistics on the working of the Trade Unions Act, 1926 for the year 2018.

I would like to express my gratitude to the Registrar of Trade Unions of all the responding State Government/Union Territory, without their support it would not have been possible to bring out this Report. I also place on record my appreciation and compliments for the work done by the team of officers and staff members of Labour Bureau, whose names appear in Annexure IV for bringing out this publication.

Suggestions for further improvement of this publication are welcome.

Chapter - 1

Salient Features of the Trade Unions Act, 1926

Trade Unions are organization of Workers as well as Employers formed to protect and promote the interest of their members. Trade Unions have made headway due to rapid individual development. The workers come together to maintain and improve their bargaining power on wages and working conditions. The first organized Trade Union in India named as the Madras Labour Union was formed in the year 1918. From the beginning itself, Trade Unions were not confined to workers alone. From 19th Century itself there were Employer's associations in the form of Chamber of Commerce, Industrial Associations etc. to protect and promote the interests of their members in a concerted manner. After independence, expansion of industrial activity and grouping worker's Trade Unions acted as a spur for strengthening and expansion of employers' organization.

In 1926, the Trade Union Act was passed which was a landmark in the history of Trade Unions in the country. The Act gave legal status to the Registered Trade Unions and conferred on them and their members a measure of immunity from Civil Suit and Criminal prosecution. Registration of Unions enhanced their status before general public. The Act gives protection to registered trade unions in certain cases against civil or criminal action. Employers and Registered Trade Unions are required to submit annual statutory returns to the Registrar of Trade Unions of respective States/Union Territories regarding their membership, sources of income, distribution of expenditure and detail of assets and liabilities, who in turn submit consolidated return on all these aspects to Labour Bureau in the specified proforma.
